BAKING BURNERS/CRAFT CORNERS

Directions:

1. Take out your marshmallow
2. Spread a bit of peanut butter or marshmallow fluff on the top and bottom of your marshmallow.
3. Place the a piece of licorice on one side (about an inch and a half)
4. Add a chocolate chip on the other side. (now, the one with the licorice is the top and the side with the chocolate chip is bottom)
5. Write the letters of the dreidel on all 4 sides, either just writing it with edible markers, or take your paintbrush and food coloring and color it.
6. allow it to dry.
7. Have tons of fun! Happy Chanukah!

Ingredients:

- Big Marshmallows
- Marshmallow fluff
- OR Peanut Butter
- Licorice
- Edible markers OR food coloring and a very thin and clean paintbrush
- Knife to spread the marshmallow fluff/peanut butter
- chocolate chips

A special story from Rosh Chodesh Kislev

On Rosh Chodesh Kislev, the day that we had the huge miracle - the Rebbe got better from his heart attack! - and the Rebbe was preparing to finally leave 770, the Rebbetzin was standing at the window of the Frierdiker Rebbe's room, on the second floor, watching the proceedings below.

Reb Mendel Notik, who was there with the Rebbetzin and another fellow, describes the emotion in the air: "It was absolutely electrifying. I glanced at the Rebbetzin and it seemed to me that her eyes became teary." Observing the celebration and the outburst of love from Chassidim to the Rebbe, she commented, "Ah-zelche maladyetz'n" (roughly translated: Such great boys).

Hey, Sarah. I saw someone yesterday who looks just like you!

Sarah paused in the middle of cramming her Books into her school bag. "Who? and where??"

Her friend Leah swung her backpack over her shoulder. "At Sunday Learning. It started this week, remember? A bunch of kids came from the other schools in town, and we chose chavrusas. One of those kids looked so much like you that I got confused for a minute because I knew you were supposed to be out of town for a wedding that day"

"I was, Sarah said absently. Leah's story intrigued her. "Did you catch the girls name?"

"Nah. But if you come to Sunday learning next week, you may get to see her for yourself."

Sunday learning was something new in town. a group of parents had decided to organize learning for their girls after their half day of school on Sunday. The first Sunday appeared to have been a big success. Sarah was sorry she'd missed it.

"Sure. I was planning on being there anyway." Sarah put the mysterious, look alike stranger out of her mind as she and Leah started the walk home.

ב"ה Story Time

There was once a man named Pesachya who went to the Rebbe Rashab before Chanukah, to get a Brocha. His job was to chop wood in the forest, and he said he would be away over Chanukah working. The Rebbe Rashab gave him a Brocha and told him that when he goes to the forest he should bring extra-long candles to light the Menorah.

One night, he was walking home from work and got caught by a group of robbers who took away all of his money & wanted to kill him. He begged them if he could just do one thing, just light his Chanukah candles. They finally agreed, so he took his extra long-candles, lit them, and then said the Brachos. Then they heard horses coming, and the group of Robbers was now caught! The police saw the candles from the other side of the forest and knew something was wrong, and because Pesachya brought extra-long candles, he was saved from the Robbers, and the robbers were finally caught.

I'm curved but I'm not a banana
I'm mentioned in Parshas Noach
I'm colorful but I'm not a parrot

What am I?

Free or fee?

There was a neighborhood of one-story houses.
One was red and everything in the house was red.
Another was purple and everything in the house was purple.
Yet another was yellow and everything in the house was yellow.
Still another was blue and everything in the house was blue.
In the green house everything was green,
and in the gray house everything was grey.

What color were the stairs in the yellow house?
