To Be Continued...

The next Sunday Sarah went to the Sunday learning and she saw Leah walking in right at the same time. Sarah looked at Leah with a confused look and she was thinking where this girl that looked “exactly like her” could have been. “Hey Sarah! How was your Shabbos?” Leah saw her before she could get to the girl she was looking for. “Hey Leah it was good! I am just looking for this girl you told me about last week that looks like me... do you see her?” Sarah asked at Leah with a look of curiosity on her face. Leah looked around the room very closely and then she whispered to Sarah that she saw her standing right there “Here let me introduce you to her” Leah said abruptly. “Hi Nechama! This is Sarah, I told her last week that she looked identical to you and I figured I would introduce you to her! she is a really sweet girl!” Sarah tried to make the conversation as fast as she could and as soon as the learning class was over she rushed out and ran home as fast as her legs could run...

STORY TIME

Mrs berkowitz returned from seeing the rebbe

“I didn’t know the Lubavitcher Rebbe knew you!” exclaimed Mrs. Berkowitz to her husband. She was waving two dollars in her hand. Rabbi Berkowitz, a prominent lecturer (maggid shiur) in a Brooklyn yeshivah looked at his wife quizzically.

“I went to receive a blessing from the Rebbe. The Rebbe handed me an additional dollar. ‘This is for your husband,’ he said. ‘Tell him that I asked about him and that I send him my regards.’”

Mrs. Berkowitz handed her husband the dollar bill, but he wasn’t paying attention. With a distant look in his eyes, he mumbled, “The Rebbe remembered... thirty years ago... that’s amazing....”

Rabbi Berkowitz seemed very intent as he related an incident which had taken place three decades earlier. “It was during the summer month of Tammuz,” he recalled. “I was walking down President Street towards Brooklyn Ave. A bearded man who just turned the corner caught my attention. He had very dignified features, his appearance was most impressive, and he was walking briskly. I stopped to have a chat with him. We exchanged some Torah thoughts and opinions about current events.

STORY TIME

“As our conversation ended, the gentleman invited me to attend a chassidic farbrengen which was to be held by the Lubavitcher Rebbe in a couple of days. Although I knew very little about the Rebbe in those days, I decided to attend.

“You can imagine how I felt when I entered the shul at “770” Eastern Parkway. The man with whom I had conversed was none other than the Rebbe himself.

“I regretted having wasted the Rebbe’s precious time. Afterwards, I asked him to forgive me. The Rebbe assured me that I needn’t worry. He welcomed me to come back more often. ‘I will yet ask about you,’ were the Rebbe’s parting words.”

“I never returned,” said Rabbi Berkowitz softly. “Today was the first time in thirty years that anyone in our family has gone to see the Rebbe.”
